I am registered as a clinical and counselling psychologist with the Health Professionals Council of South Africa and have more than thirty years of experience as a psychologist. In my practice I consult with people of all age groups about a range of problems that might urge them to seek the help of a psychologist. I also consult with families, couples and other people who experience difficulties in their relationships and teams of colleagues who work together. I enjoy consulting with teenagers and young adults and their families. My work with adults includes a diversity of people of different ages presenting with a very wide range of concerns. I make referrals to other mental health practitioners as needed.
