Remote Access Control started in 1992 when the automation industry was still in its infancy. At that stage access control was a luxury, whereas today it has become more of a necessity. Over the years, as a family owned business, we have outlived many other automation companies and suppliers and has continued to grow from strength to strength. Technology has improved vastly since the early days of Remote Access Control and we have continued to upgrade our staff skills and offer our clients the very best that technology has to offer to secure their property. With an engineer and highly experienced technicians on staff, clients can rest assured that they will be getting the very best that the industry can offer. We at Remote Access Control believe the reason we continue be leaders in this competitive industry is because of our exceptional service using well qualified staff members who take pride in their work and loyalty to the company. We still service many of our very first clients who have stuck with us because they know they can rely on us for the same prompt service and high-quality standards that we have offered from day one. Since 1992 we have built up extensive knowledge and experience pertaining to almost every aspect of access control that you might need to secure your business and home.
